

About your Trinity examiner

Jeremy Bird
BA (Hons), ARCM, PGCE

After vocal studies with the renowned teacher John Cameron at the RNCM and a Cambridge choral scholarship, Jeremy's first real job was as a Lay Clerk at Canterbury Cathedral before moving into music education. He has enjoyed a rewarding and fruitful 25 year career including Director of Music posts at Pocklington School and Reigate Grammar School before becoming Course Manager and Head of Music of one of the largest A-Level courses in the UK at Richard Huish College.

He has extensive experience as an Examiner at GCSE and A Level and has adjudicated at many music competitions and festivals, whilst he has established, conducted and coached a wide range of ensembles including choirs, orchestras, choral societies, swing bands and chamber groups. He also has a keen interest in popular music as seen in his roles as MD for many music theatre productions and as instructor for numerous young pop/rock bands. He remains a passionate believer in 'music for all'.

Jeremy works as teacher and accompanist, and has examined for Trinity both in the UK and internationally including tours to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Hong Kong, India, Malaysia, Vietnam and the UAE.
