

About your Rock & Pop examiner

Kate Proudlove
AMus.TCL, LRSM

Kate began her vocal studies with choral director and composer Patrick Larley. She then studied voice with Soo Bee Lee and piano with Tom Jackman at the London College of Music. Kate furthered her opera studies with British Youth Opera and the Welsh Opera School.

Kate has had many engagements as an oratorio and concert soloist whilst also working in function bands and as a singer songwriter. She has worked with artists as diverse as Neil Jenkins, Imogen Heap, Jim Diamond, The Delays and Murder By Death and in venues such as The Royal Albert Hall, The Royal Opera House and Ronnie Scotts. Most recently Kate has dedicated her performing career to indie group The Peryls, with whom she has written and recorded EP's and albums, which are published by Tummy Touch Music. Their music has featured on BBC radio 6 and has been used in adverts, TV and films in Europe and America.